

Accepting Gifts from A Client

Accepting gifts from a client has the potential to be misunderstood, misinterpreted, and may damage the client relationship. Depending upon the situation, the client, and value of the gift, it may be appropriate to accept a gift (of nominal value) from a client.

Gifts of any value should be discussed with your supervisor.